

Lesson Twelve

Morphology

Morphology

Morphology is the science of looking at a plant's similarities to the human body. The corresponding part of the plant is most helpful for healing imbalances with its corresponding body part.

Flowers are very uplifting and carry the highest frequency of the plant, the rose being the highest.

Fruit oils are made from the zest of fruit peels. They add zest to your life.

Leaves and needles are how the plant breathes and most of these oils are great for supporting our respiratory system.

Bark oils are made from the inside of a tree's bark and are great for centering.

Resins are wound healers. Like pine pitch, trees ooze resins from their bark to protect any wounds they have from outside pathogens. They do the same for us.

Oils that are made from roots are grounding.

Congratulations!

You have completed the Sacred Oil Foundation Class, Section I. By now you should have a good understanding of how to use essential oils for common ailments as well as an understanding of inner alchemy and working with imbalances on the emotional plane.

Consider this the information that stands outside the gates of the garden of Sacred Oils. This is the information that is available to everyone and anyone. But as you begin the second section of this class, you will enter into something quite different —an ancient wisdom rooted in the Egyptian mysteries and Myrrhophore traditions. It's here where you'll truly understand the power of the oils and the work of the Myrrhophores.

Once you complete this exam, you will be ready for the next phase!
